Quail Order Form

The Quail license is for stand-alone use on one computer at a time. The license is managed by a software security dongle. You may install the software on computers in your organization. The software security dongle will allow the software to run only on the computer with the dongle attached.

If you lost the software security dongle, we don't offer replacement dongle.

Before purchasing and installing the software, you must read and agree with the Quail End User License Agreement, which can be downloaded from the Caltrans Quail webpage.
