IN RECENT NEWS:

Taking advantage of clear weather, crews at Regent's Slide continue to make cuts in the slope and remove debris material. Climbing crews are also in full force on the slope above the roadway securing the mesh netting which will protect the travelling public from rockfall once the road is reopened.

Data from measuring instruments indicate that since the installation of shear dowels was completed last month, no significant slide movement has been detected.

In the coming week, crews will install a new and larger culvert in the northbound shoulder to help convey water and debris under the roadway during storm conditions.
